CENTERING DIVERSITY, EQUITY + INCLUSION IN UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH + CREATIVE ACTIVITY

Mentoring 101 for Graduate Students and Post-Doctoral Scholars Workshop

June 21, 2021
Virtual
11:00AM - 3:00PM ET

Are you a Postdoctoral scholar or a graduate student? Interested in mentoring undergraduate students but don't know where or how to start?

Register for the Council on Undergraduate Research's Workshop: Mentoring 101 for Graduate Students and Post-Doctoral Scholars.

This workshop will introduce graduate students and post-docs to the why, what, and how of mentoring undergraduates in research, scholarship and creative activities. The workshop will combine panel sessions with active break-outs and will provide support material to aid participants in their mentoring. The first session will focus on the basics of getting involved in mentoring, the second on inclusive mentoring practices, and the third on navigating mentoring.

Want to get more out of your workshop experience? Extend your virtual stay and join CUR at the Centering Diversity, Equity + Inclusion in Undergraduate Research and Creative Activity Conference June 23-25, 2021.

This virtual conference will serve as a platform for professionals to share, learn, listen, and grow in areas of this integrated focus, in order to adequately contribute to the ongoing transformation of the undergraduate research environment on your campuses. Using creative facilitative approaches including critical conversations and innovative presentations related to the installation, operation, maintenance, and application of undergraduate research structures in higher education institutions, this conference promotes the exploration and adoption of effective tools and processes for change, that will generate a range of equitable and inclusive opportunities for the advancement of undergraduate research.
