

Graduate Student Mental Health:

Trends, Strategies, Resources

November 27th &
December 6th
2:00 - 4:00 pm
Chittenden 110

Scott Becker, PhD, LP
Academic Research Specialist
The Graduate School
Michigan State University

Mental health issues among graduate students are increasingly prevalent, complex, and acute, with the significant potential to negatively impact academic performance, persistence, and time-to-degree. This workshop is offered to any support staff who have a professional role related to graduate student functioning and success. We will review the most recent survey and clinical data, discuss intervention and engagement strategies, and review referral resources on- and off-campus.